

INTELLI HEAT - Heritage Delivers Seal Of Approval To Intelli Heat

Leading electric heating specialist Intelli Heat has renewed a contract to supply its highly responsive, energy efficient heating systems to an award-winning house-builder dedicated to developing environmentally friendly homes.

Norwich-based Heritage Developments was so impressed with an earlier scheme kitted out with some 300 Intelli Heat electric radiators that it has just installed another 70 or so in its latest development, the high-spec Waterloo Park in Leiston, Suffolk.

Waterloo Park, a short drive from the picturesque fishing village of Aldeburgh, is a high-specification development of 20 townhouses, flats and masionettes. It has proved popular with second home purchasers who appreciate the controllability and reliability of the easy-to-install Intelli Heat radiators, as Heritage sales and marketing director Mark Bradnum explained: "The Intelli Heat electric central heating system is perfect for our customers, particularly those who are away Monday to Friday since they can programme it to come on just before they arrive home. It provides a comfortable ambient temperature and is very economic to run."

Waterloo Park has been specifically designed to meet the demand of today's discerning homeowner. Each home is furnished with stylish Intelli Heat Electric heating, fully integrated kitchens, well-equipped bathrooms with an emphasis on quality and natural materials.
